Parenting, Socialization, and Gender Regulation

育兒、社會化與性別規範

Parenting is where gender norms become daily life routines.

Parenting is often framed as personal choice, but in reality it is also shaped by:

- social norms (what “good parents” should do)
- institutional practices (school forms, curriculum, counseling systems)
- cultural scripts (what a “normal family” looks like)
- moral judgment (approval / shame / fear)

Gender norms as “informal laws” 性別規範作為「非正式法律」

A) Social Norms 性別規範

Gender norms operate like informal非正式 laws often stronger than formal rules.

Examples of social norms (from the Gender Norms section) include everyday “politeness rules” and situation-appropriate clothing. The point is: norms feel “natural,” but they are socially enforced.

Gender norms as “informal laws” 性別規範作為「非正式法律」

A) Social Norms 性別規範

Class framing 階級框架:

“A good parent should raise a ‘proper boy’ / ‘proper girl’.”

“A child’s gender/sexuality is a reflection of parenting.”

These are not neutral beliefs; they are norm enforcement mechanisms 執行.

B) The Cycle of Oppression 壓迫循環

To deepen beyond “opinions,” we use the Cycle of Oppression framework.
The model shows how society moves from:
stereotype 刻板印象 → prejudice 偏見 → discrimination 歧視 → oppression
壓迫 → internalized oppression 內化壓迫.

Core theoretical vocabulary

- heteronormativity (異性戀規範): the assumption that heterosexuality is normal/default
- gender norms (性別規範): informal rules of masculinity/femininity
- gender policing (性別管控/糾正): social correction when someone “does gender wrong”

Core theoretical vocabulary (B1–B2)

- respectability politics (體面政治): “to be accepted, you must act normal/acceptable”
- moral panic (道德恐慌): exaggerated fear about perceived norm-breaking
- structural bias (結構偏見): bias embedded in institutions, media, and systems
- protective factors (保護因子): support that reduces harm and improves wellbeing

Critical Thinking Tool for Today

Critical Thinking Tool for Today

We use a 4-step model (same logic as Week 4, but applied to parenting/family context):

1. Describe – What do we see/hear? (no judgment)
2. Analyze – What norms/power relations shape this situation?
3. Build Vision – What would fairness/safety/support look like?
4. Develop Action – What can families/schools/community do?

Warm-Up:

“Good Parent / Good Child” Norms

Quick Think–Pair–Share (A2 → B1 bridge)

Prompt (write on board):

“When people say ‘good parenting,’ what do they usually mean?”

Sentence starters (A2)

- “A good parent should _____.”
- “People expect boys to _____.”
- “People expect girls to _____.”
- “In my community, parents worry about _____.”

Core Viewing: Documentary Clip(缺片源)

台北電影節 Taipei Film Festival (2017年5月16日)。
2017台北電影節 | 台北電影獎：紀錄片 | 你找什麼？ Looking For？ [影片]。

Before Watching:

Viewing purpose + ethical ground rules

Ground rules (quick):

- Speak about ideas/systems, not attacking individuals.
- Use “I notice...” instead of “They are wrong...”
- Keep confidentiality if classmates share personal experiences.

While Watching :

Guided note-taking (A2 scaffold)

Students write only observable evidence.

A2 note prompts

- “I see ____.”
- “I hear ____.”
- “The challenge is ____.”
- “The support is ____.”

After Watching : Teacher-guided structural discussion

Step 1: Describe (A2)

- Who are the key family members (as shown)?
- What situations or conflicts appear?
- What emotions appear (fear, pride, anxiety, hope)?

After Watching : Teacher-guided structural discussion

Step 2: Analyze (B1–B2)

Move from “story” to “system.” Use the frameworks:

Gender norms / heteronormativity questions

- What counts as a “normal family” in public imagination?
- Where do we see heterosexuality treated as default?
- What gender expectations appear for parents/children?

After Watching : Teacher-guided structural discussion

Cycle of oppression questions (pp. 32–36 lens)

- What stereotypes are visible in public reactions?
- Where might prejudice show up (fear / blame / shame)?
- Where could discrimination appear (school forms, health care, legal recognition, bullying)?
- How might oppression become internalized (self-doubt, silence, hiding)?

After Watching : Teacher-guided structural discussion

Structural lens sentence frames (B1–B2)

- “This reflects gender policing because _____.”
- “This narrative reinforces structural bias by _____.”
- “This representation normalizes hierarchy through _____.”
- “The ‘default family’ script is maintained by _____ (media/school/community).”

Main Task: Critical Thinking Map

— Family & Socialization

Each group submits:

1. The clip link + timestamp(s) you used
 2. One analysis map (4 steps) or written 4-step explanation

Main Task: Critical Thinking Map

— Family & Socialization

Four-Step Map (template students follow)

Describe (facts only)

- Main characters: _____
- What happened: _____
- Key quotes/actions: _____

Analyze (norms + power)

- Norm: “A real family should _____.”
- Policing: Who is correcting whom? How?
- Institution/system: Where do we see structural barriers?
- Cycle lens: stereotype → prejudice → discrimination → oppression
examples

— Family & Socialization

Four-Step Map (template students follow)

Build Vision (fairness/support)

- “If the community/school were supportive...”
- A fair response would be: _____
- A safe environment would include: _____
- Respectful language would sound like: _____

Develop Action (practical strategies)

- Family level: _____
- School level: _____
- Community/media level: _____
- Personal online behavior: _____

Teacher Synthesis: From Parenting to Social Structure

Board summary (3 bullets):

1. Norms create expectations
2. Institutions translate expectations into barriers
3. Support systems can reduce harm and increase dignity

ESP Skill Focus: Inclusive Communication for Parenting Contexts

Task: “School–Family Communication Micro-Roleplay” (B1–B2)

Scenario: A parent meets a teacher/counselor about a child’s wellbeing.

Goal: practice supportive language and avoid norm assumptions.

Kahoot

Kahoot focus vocabulary:
