Before we enter the stories, we must clarify:

From Chapter 8 – Gender Norms:

Norms are maintained through repetition and belief.

From Chapter 4 – Cycle of Oppression:

Stereotype → Norm → Enforcement → Internalization

But what happens after internalization?

Sometimes:

Reflection反思 → Discomfort不適 → Reinterpretation重新詮釋 →

Change改變

Week 9 studies this final movement.

Part 1 | Modern Gender Norms & Gaya

In social rules, people may feel controlled like in a cage 牢籠, but when rules fade, some feel society loses standards.

Today, we will explore how people and systems can keep a dynamic balance 動態平衡.

Part 1 | Modern Gender Norms & Gaya

Story: Love and Gaya (Following the culture, finding the light.)

Here's an interesting story:

In Truku tradition, if a young man falls in love with a young woman, he must be a bit strategic; he may approach her father and keep offering drinks.

He offers alcohol to the girl's father and keeps pouring until the father is drunk.

Part 1 | Modern Gender Norms & Gaya

Story: Love and Gaya (Following the culture, finding the light.)

Once the father is intoxicated 醉醺醺, this is seen as a sign of gaining his blessing, and the couple is allowed to sleep together.

The next day, the young man returns home and sacrifices a pig. From that moment, they are considered a couple.

(This part is from the Korean movie When the Pain Ends. 苦盡甘來有這段！)

(Listen carefully—what does this story tell us about Gaya?)

Part 1 | Modern Gender Norms & Gaya

Last week we learned that Gaya can be strict;
this week we also see that it can be flexible.

In your culture or life, are there rules that have changed over time?
Think about your own culture or family—what rules have been changed or broken?

Which generation did this happen in? Why does the time period matter for change?

Part 1 | Modern Gender Norms & Gaya

Now, let's see how people today challenge or adapt their culture — is it possible?

So, let's move to the Part 2.

Part 2 | Taking Action: Challenging and Adapting Culture

行動與改變：挑戰與調整文化

Before we jump into today's main activity, let me walk you through the ground rules.

Part 2 | Taking Action: Challenging and Adapting Culture

Step 1 | Choose Your Story

Here are five stories.

Each group will choose or draw one.

You will watch, read, and discuss it in detail.

Part 2 | Taking Action: Challenging and Adapting Culture

Step 1 | Choose Your Story

- Introduce: I will first introduce all five stories.
- Story Selection: Students will draw lots to choose a story. After that, you may privately negotiate to swap stories with another group.
- Reading & Question-Making (15 minutes): Once the stories are set, the timer starts. Each group will carefully read their story and create 2–3 thoughtful questions about its theme. You must discuss these with me, and at least 1–2 questions need my approval. Write your approved questions on your poster.
- Keywords: On the back of your poster, write down the keywords related to your questions.
- Poster Presentation: After the discussion activity, we will have a poster presentation.

Part 2 | Taking Action: Challenging and Adapting Culture

Step 1 | Choose Your Story

1. Dangdang | Tradition vs Personal Dream 傳統與個人夢想

- Summary: Dangdang was taught to dress modestly 保守, avoid men, stay home, and weave 織布. She respects Gaya, but dreams of becoming a teacher. At first, her family disagreed, but later supported her.
- Challenge: Balancing respect for tradition with pursuing a personal dream.
- Video/Text: Provided in class.

Part 2 | Taking Action: Challenging and Adapting Culture

Step 1 | Choose Your Story

2. Wadan | Breaking Gender Roles 打破性別角色

- Summary: Wadan, a young man, loves weaving. Gaya says only women should weave, but he learned secretly from his grandmother. Some mocked him, but others supported him. “Weaving is part of our identity, not just for women.” (Breaking gender roles, keeping culture.)
- Challenge: Redefining cultural identity beyond gender limits.
- Video/Text: Provided in class.
- 瓦旦織布 <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=INKR6WUaWOU>

Part 2 | Taking Action: Challenging and Adapting Culture

Step 1 | Choose Your Story

3. Family & Sexuality Expectations 鬆動家庭的性傾向期待

- Summary: A set of parents openly support their son in coming out as gay (出櫃). This breaks a traditional family expectation about sexuality, showing acceptance and love over judgment.
- Challenge: Changing deeply rooted family values.
- Video: Provided in class.

Part 2 | Taking Action: Challenging and Adapting Culture

Step 1 | Choose Your Story

4. Defending Gender Diversity 捍衛多元性別氣質

- Summary: A mother publicly supports her son's different gender expression (性別氣質), defending his right to be himself in a society with strict norms.
- Challenge: Confronting social criticism to protect individuality.
- Video: Provided in class.

Part 2 | Taking Action: Challenging and Adapting Culture

Step 1 | Choose Your Story

5. Personal Family Norms 個人家庭規範故事

Share your own stories.

Ask some questions from these stories, and then answer them.

choose or draw one?

Part 2 | Taking Action: Challenging and Adapting Culture

Step 2 | Group Discussion 小組討論

Work in your groups for 15 minutes. Your job:

1. Share the key points 重點 from the story.
2. Create two interesting questions 提問 and write your group's answers 回覆.

Step 3 | Poster Round 1 第一次壁報發表

After the discussion, choose two members to stay at your poster and present. Others will visit other posters and listen.

Part 2 | Taking Action: Challenging and Adapting Culture

Step 4 | Poster Round 2 角色交換

Now switch roles. The presenters will go visit other posters, and the previous listeners will return to present at their poster.

Closing | 結尾

This stage ends with the poster presentations. You've seen how different people challenge or adapt cultural rules — change can take many forms.

Part 3 | Deeper Reflection: Family Gender Rules

Step 1 | Prepare Examples 準備案例

Write down 2–3 events about gender culture (性別文化) in your family or relatives. We will collect 10–15 examples for our game.

- In some families, gender rules are as strict as Gaya; in others, they are more flexible. Examples:
 - Parents opposed their son dating a vegetarian woman (Can change)
 - Mother forbids daughter from going out in the lunar 7th month (Cannot change)
 - Parents once said boys should not cook. (Can change)

Part 3 | Deeper Reflection: Family Gender Rules

Step 2 | Can Change or Cannot Change Game 舉牌遊戲

I will read an example. Decide: Can it change? Or cannot change? Hold up your sign, and share one quick reason or example.

Step 3 | Optional Sharing 額外分享

After the game, you can share aloud or write your household rules on a poster. Some may be similar to Gaya, others shaped by family traditions, religion, or personal values.

Part 4 | Reflection and Commitment

Step 1 | Reflection Writing 反思寫作

- How would you explain your family's gender rules?
- Which are unbreakable traditions (牢不可破的傳統)?
- Which are personal choices (個人選擇)?

Part 4 | Reflection and Commitment

Step 1 | Reflection Writing 反思寫作

1. In your culture or family, what gender rules have been broken or changed? (結婚、不生孩子、出櫃、男生織布、女生開賽車、男女都平分財產等)
2. Which generation did this happen in? (siblings, parents, grandparents)
3. Why does the time period matter for change? 為什麼要問哪一代發生的改變？跟你想啟動革命性改變，有差別嗎？

Closing | 結尾

Gaya can be strict but also flexible. Our ancestors were serious about the rules, yet they left space for change.

In your culture, there might not be Gaya, but maybe there are other ways to control behavior—like laws that punish LGBTQ people, family rules that shame children who break gender norms, or religious beliefs about karma因果, reincarnation輪迴, heaven, and hell.

Some rules can protect us, but also limit us. Some can change with education and society, while others are still very hard to change.

Closing | 結尾

Culture is not a cage.
But it can feel like one.
Structure is powerful.
But it is not permanent.

Gaya shows:

Rules can regulate.

But they can also be re-read.

When individuals reinterpret tradition, they are not always destroying culture.

Sometimes, they are preserving its spirit.

Closing | 結尾

Week 9 teaches us:
Change does not always come from rebellion.
It can come from understanding.
